Actuary Day Recap

Over one hundred actuarial science students attended the third annual Actuary Day on April 25, 2014. There were presentations on reinsurance and the health care industry. Students were recognized for their outstanding GPA and next year's officers were announced. Finally a panel of many prominent actuaries from different fields answered student's various questions related to becoming an actuary.

Larry Stern, President of Canterbury Consulting was the first speaker. He explained what reinsurance was, detailed its purposes, and showed us examples of reinsurance being used. Next, Tim Reilly, Chief Financial Officer at L.A. Care Health Plan explained what actuarial analysts do in the healthcare field. He described setting insurance premiums, developing risk stabilization programs, and estimating reserves.

Next, Alexander and Allie were presented with the Rama Thogarati Memorial Award and the upcoming year's officers were announced.

Finally, there was a Q&A Panel that offered students with detailed insights about the profession. The actuaries shared personal stories, discussed different skills needed, and gave tips on succeeding in interviews getting internships.
